THE BRUNSWICK LODGE.

It is Proposed to Thoroughly Develop it.

For many years past there has been talk of developing the Brunswick Lodge. The big companies propose to jointly acquire title and develop it thoroughly.

The ground lies about a mile East of the celebrated Comstock and has all the distinguishing features of that bonanza. In past years, however, the ground was not extensively worked because of too much water, but the Sutro tunnel passed through and drained the vein and at the present time no trouble from that cause is anticipated.

The portion of the lode which the Comstock companies propose to acquire lies between the Monte Cristo mine on the North, which Judge Heydenfeldt in his life time considered the greatest treasure-house on earth, and the Occidental mines on the South, which are now working and paying.

The lode is cut by the Sutro tunnel at a depth of over 1300 on the vertical or about 1900 on the dip of the vein. On the level of the tunnel it shows a width of 113 feet in pay ore, and as on the Comstock ledge the great bonanza was encountered above this level, and it is believed that great bodies of rich ore lie concealed in this enormous fissure. The outcroppings on the surface are remarkably rich and strong. The statement is made that pay ore is reached almost at the grass roots.

On the surface but little work has ever been done on the Brunswick lode. The Monte Cristo mines have only reached the trifling depth of 150 feet. That of the St. John is even less, and yet large amounts of gold and silver have been taken from these mines. It is impossible to state the amount of bullion that has been taken from these mines as there has been no official record kept of the output during the years when the production was largest. Messrs. Craven and Wrinkle, the mining experts, estimate the amount from the best information obtainable as follows:

Monte Cristo.....	$250,000
Cosmopolitan.....	90,000
Bailey.....	50,000
Alabama.....	40,000
St. John.....	70,000
Occidental.....	200,000
Total.....	$700,000

Inasmuch as the Brunswick lode is to be thoroughly exploited great interest is now shown in the written reports which have at various time been made on that mining property by mining experts. That it has long been known as a valuable property is evident from the report of Bowie and Hodges, who carefully examined every claim on the lode, made in August, 1882. Their report is exhaustive. It abounds in technical terms and figures and treats of each claim separately.

Expert Haist, who reported in 1892, is even more pronounced in favor of the property. He says: "The Comstock itself does not show more prominent or more promising outcrops than this great east vein." He adds:

"No vein in Western Nevada is of greater promise and in no other place can money be expended in prospecting with more probability of developing a valuable mining property. On the lode there is room for a dozen first-class mines, and it is by no means improbable that at no very distant day the Brunswick lode will be a scene of as great a mining activity as the Comstock. There is in it possibilities that should not be overlooked, and the only wonder is that it has been permitted to lie undeveloped for so many years."

Fourth of July Feature.

The most attractive feature of the Fourth of July celebration in Carson will be the car of State in the procession, to be presided over by the Goddess of Liberty, who shall be the most popular young lady, native of Ormsby County. To properly determine who that young lady is the following plan will be adopted:

Subscribers to the celebration fund will be entitled to one vote for each dollar subscribed, the choice of subscribers to be made known to the Secretary of the Executive committee on or before June 20th, when the vote will be canvassed. Subscribe liberally and insure the success of your choice. The successful candidate will receive a dress suitable for the occasion from the Committee.

An Open Sea-Cock.

Yesterday morning the owners of the steamer Emerald at Lake Tahoe found that she had sunk at the wharf. Someone had left a sea-cock open and she had filled with water. They will have her up today.

CARD FROM U. S. MARSHAL.

Why He Declined the Proposition of Heney's Attorney.

EDITOR APPEAL:—Although averse to newspaper explanations in the conducting of official business, I will for once depart from a rule and briefly reply to some statements in the Carson Tribune, which were copied in last evening's Gazette. I have never solicited the aid of any attorneys, excepting those representing the United States Government in securing the arrest of James Heney. I have made and am still making diligent search for the man, whose arrest, I am confident, is only a matter of time. There has been no proposition made to me by his attorney for his surrender which I could honorably consider or accept. Mr. Woodburn wanted me to appoint him a deputy marshal and as such see his client, and if he did not produce him the Government was to be subjected to no expense in the matter. The idea of officially empowering the attorney of a fugitive, charged with a serious crime, to interview his client, with no assurance of his production, apart from the rules and regulations of the department to which I am attached, was too absurd and preposterous to merit serious consideration. I did offer, however, to appoint Mr. Woodburn a deputy, permit him to accompany me without cost to himself, allow him to consult with his client to his heart's content and guarantee that the man should not be interrupted or molested on his way to Carson, with the assurance that he should have ample time and opportunity to procure bail upon his arrival there. According to Mr. Woodburn's statement to me, and as he has declared through the public press, the only obstacle was the fear that Heney would be "paraded as a criminal" and subjected to imprisonment with no opportunity to procure bail, etc. That being the case, I thought and still think that my offer fully covered all of the objections of his fastidious client. I do not believe that I was ever charged with mistreating a prisoner, and if Heney is ever in my official charge he will be treated as others have been. There will be no "parade" made of him, and he will be allowed all privileges consistent with his safe-keeping and the requirements of the law. I do not know, however, any reason, because he is charged with stealing a large instead of a small amount from the government, why he should receive unusual consideration or his arrest made a matter of punctilious diplomacy instead of a simple process of law.

I am satisfied that there has been no sincerity in these professions of willingness to produce Heney. The propositions to me have been farcical and childish, and such as those who made them must have known I could not accept without making myself ridiculous in the eyes of the authorities of my department and all sensible persons. My only reason for making this newspaper explanation is my belief that no voluntary surrender of Heney has been intended by those who have been parading the matter for the last few weeks in the public press, and so in justice to myself and my associates I concluded reluctantly to make this statement of the facts. I neither ask nor expect any assistance from the attorneys of the man who is so anxious to surrender, but who is so industriously concealing himself; but I am, however, always ready and willing to avail myself of all honorable means of furthering the ends of justice in the line of my official duty.

Geo. M. HUMPHREY,
United States Marshal.

Reno, May 30, 1895.

San Francisco, June 1.—The Coroner's jury rendered a verdict that Jennie Mathews died from poison administered by unknown parties. Coroner Hawkins refused to approve the verdict, claiming that the evidence showed O. W. Winthrop had given the poison.
